French avant-garde music at UI

By Judith Green

One of the premier electronic music groups in France, La Groupe de musique expérimentale de Bourges (GMEB) performs as part of a month-long festival of North American electronic music.

The performers include the group's founders, Michel Rack and Jacques Derrida, Frank Petrilec in Mar and George Busheil. The group's approach uses electronic and digital synthesizers available in Canada, a student of Dartmouth College.

The repertoire ranges from variations of electronic composition and improvisation to more experimental works featuring electronic and acoustic instruments. The performances will be held in the UI Musical Arts Center, with the group's concerts scheduled for noon on November 17.
