Dichter: More math than music

By John Voiland

It is becoming increasingly easy to discern why Mika Dichter has specialized in the high-keyed genre of Franz Liszt. Dichter has become the contemporary face of the Lisztian ideal, combining a high degree of technical virtuosity with a strong emotional core. His performances, whether played from behind a modest piano or in a large concert hall, always bring the audience to its feet, showering him with audible applause.

Dichter's concerts are a celebration of the Lisztian spirit, combining the technical brilliance of the composer with the passionate intensity of the performer. His playing is a perfect embodiment of the composer's ideas, bringing to life the music in a way that is both technically impressive and emotionally compelling.

Dichter's repertoire is vast, ranging from the Lisztian symphonies to the smaller, more intimate works. His performances are always a treat, whether he is playing solo or with an orchestra.

Dichter is not just a musician, but also a scholar, with a deep understanding of the composer's life and works. He brings this knowledge to his performances, making them not just a display of technical skill, but also a journey through the composer's musical mind.

Dichter's concerts are not just for music lovers, but for anyone who enjoys a good performance. Whether you are a seasoned concertgoer or a first-time attendee, Dichter's concerts are sure to leave you amazed and inspired.
