Is there life after the Midwest for Spencer?

By T. Johnson

Madison, Wis. — It is not exactly Music City U.S.A. Or Chicago and New York, but there are some attractions which draw a fairly large crowd of art music fans from around the Midwest.

It's pretty much a dusty town here, especially at the University of Wisconsin. There are a few concert halls which feature T-shirts of various artists. New Wave fans can sit through fairly loud music for an hour and a half at the Coliseum, home of the Wisconsin Symphony Orchestra.

But locals really look forward to the world-famous "NIGHTCLUB" music series at the Memorial Union. When the students are in town, the club attracts many visitors, including one from Iowa City.

Spencer is one of the Madison architects, a band with a following. In fact, on Aug. 20, and an enthusiastic crowd at the world-famous "NIGHTCLUB" music series at the Memorial Union. When the students are in town, the club attracts many visitors, including one from Iowa City.

Spencer is a band about ready to make its mark in Madison and Milwaukee looks like the local's self-produced record, a version of "Love's" by the Beach Boys on the Madison charts. Rumors has it at least is firmly in the band's hometown of Chicago, with some up-and-coming musicians.

Ul group to present music of the Camboral Connection

By Judith Green

The University of Illinois presents "Music from the Camboral Connection" on Thursday, April 24, at 8 p.m. in the Auditorium. The performance is free and open to the public.

Judith Green

The Camboral Connection, a group of winds and percussionists from the University of Illinois, will present a program of music from around the world, including works by composers from ancient to contemporary times.

The program will feature a variety of instruments, including the Camboral, a large wind instrument that produces a rich, deep sound. The Camboral Connection will also perform music from Latin America, Asia, and Africa.

The concert will be held in the Auditorium, located in the George R. Bluhm Hall on the University of Illinois campus.

Multimedia music presentation will feature composer Gaburo

The multimedia music of composer Kiyoshi Gaburo is to be performed in these performances this weekend, sponsored by the UI School of Music. In addition to Gaburo's music, the performances will feature works by other composers, including those of John Cage and Philip Glass.

The performance will be held on Friday, April 21, at 8 p.m. in the Auditorium. The performance is free and open to the public.