

Woman to show photo-art

A Rock Island, Ill., woman shows insights into people and presents moments of everyday beauty in some large-size pictures beginning Monday afternoon at the University Union.

Thelma "Pine" Hopp, a name she uses for the name of her photo-art exhibit, is of the 12th Street building of the university. The exhibit will be open to the public from 1 to 4 p.m. daily until Thursday.

"Picture for Today," she said, "is the title I've chosen for the photo-art exhibit. It will be open to the public from 1 to 4 p.m. daily until Thursday."

Mrs. Hopp is a former Chicago photographer who has taken pictures for a number of years. She has also been a member of the Chicago Artists' Union in Chicago and a member of the Chicago Artists' Union in Chicago.

For the exhibit, she has chosen a number of pictures of people in various situations, from everyday life to the more formal settings of the city.

"I have chosen these pictures for the exhibit because they represent the beauty and diversity of life," Mrs. Hopp said. "I feel that my pictures can capture the essence of life and its beauty, and that they can bring people together in a common appreciation of the world around us."

The exhibit will be open to the public from 1 to 4 p.m. daily until Thursday, and admission will be free.
