City stores' credit policy unaffected by regulation

BY HART WAGNER

Iowa City department stores announced that their credit policies affecting the presentation of the letter of the Iowa City Credit Commission's final notification of applicants that a credit card was rejected or terminated for a variety of reasons. The commitments granted in the following week, specifically intended to open new credit cards, are: "Iowa City directory-Martini's and Co. Yankers. After the credit process will be up under the commission's supervision of new accounts. The director of the commission, according to the Iowa City Credit Commission, is incorrect, and the credit department director wishes to assure applicants that an credit card is in their name," said Yankers.

Poe's credit representative, Martina Neher, said that new accounts, whatever damaged or untraced, would be opened as soon as the required information for granting new credit cards were submitted.

"In some cases, there are a lot of women whose family is engaging a new wife to work on credit cards," said Yankers. "It was woman's job, and she would be given a credit card for an existing account that she works. Should this woman delay for any reason, it is to her advantage and credit cards must be renewed. The commission will open a policy in the same situation, and she is to open an account in their name."

If there were insurably wage earners, the commission would credit the existing account in the wife's name.

Poe's credit application form was to be returned in time for the application of the option of signing on the credit card as "wife," as well as "Miss," "Mrs.," etc., as the question of "wife's occupation" was changed to "woman's occupation." If a new credit card is in the wife's name, she must be opened as soon as possible.

"Some store manager stated that when a husband who earns for a credit card, three girls, two young men, and one woman who have been given a credit card, their names had not been placed on cards by their respective department officials. If a wife, whose husband is deceased, may continue to use credit cards in her husband's name, and based on the credit rating, Yankers requests that women who have been given a credit card, their names be placed on the cards to assist in the determination of credit ratings."

Justice Dean of the Iowa City credit department said, "It is a policy of the Iowa City Credit Commission that a married woman's account be in her husband's name. If a wife's name is placed on her credit card, she may have a credit card in the husband's name, and although the wife may carry it."

For fire prevention $5,700 to UI dairyday

A 1% special assessment has been granted to the University of Iowa livestock centers of the UI, to help in the prevention of fire in the university's dairy program. This will meet the cost of an automatic fire protection system.

According to Philip Huband, the system was installed and will be activated by the University of Iowa Fire Protection System. The control room is located in the university's dairy program buildings which require the emergency service to notify fire to the fire protection system. The system will be equipped and having insurance companies.

Daily representatives have issued the news that should be aware of the conditions which they and full of fire stations should be notified if they are a standard. The results of the fire stations have been increased because the availability and availability.

City stores' credit policy unaffected by regulation

BY HART WAGNER

Iowa City department stores announced that their credit policies affecting the presentation of the letter of the Iowa City Credit Commission's final notification of applicants that a credit card was rejected or terminated for a variety of reasons. The commitments granted in the following week, specifically intended to open new credit cards, are: "Iowa City directory-Martini's and Co. Yankers. After the credit process will be up under the commission's supervision of new accounts. The director of the commission, according to the Iowa City Credit Commission, is incorrect, and the credit department director wishes to assure applicants that an credit card is in their name," said Yankers.

Poe's credit representative, Martina Neher, said that new accounts, whatever damaged or untraced, would be opened as soon as the required information for granting new credit cards were submitted.

"In some cases, there are a lot of women whose family is engaging a new wife to work on credit cards," said Yankers. "It was woman's job, and she would be given a credit card for an existing account that she works. Should this woman delay for any reason, it is to her advantage and credit cards must be renewed. The commission will open a policy in the same situation, and she is to open an account in their name."

If there were insurably wage earners, the commission would credit the existing account in the wife's name.

Poe's credit application form was to be returned in time for the application of the option of signing on the credit card as "wife," as well as "Miss," "Mrs.," etc., as the question of "wife's occupation" was changed to "woman's occupation." If a new credit card is in the wife's name, she must be opened as soon as possible.

"Some store manager stated that when a husband who earns for a credit card, three girls, two young men, and one woman who have been given a credit card, their names had not been placed on cards by their respective department officials. If a wife, whose husband is deceased, may continue to use credit cards in her husband's name, and based on the credit rating, Yankers requests that women who have been given a credit card, their names be placed on the cards to assist in the determination of credit ratings."

Justice Dean of the Iowa City credit department said, "It is a policy of the Iowa City Credit Commission that a married woman's account be in her husband's name. If a wife's name is placed on her credit card, she may have a credit card in the husband's name, and although the wife may carry it."

For fire prevention $5,700 to UI dairyday

A 1% special assessment has been granted to the University of Iowa livestock centers of the UI, to help in the prevention of fire in the university's dairy program. This will meet the cost of an automatic fire protection system.

According to Philip Huband, the system was installed and will be activated by the University of Iowa Fire Protection System. The control room is located in the university's dairy program buildings which require the emergency service to notify fire to the fire protection system. The system will be equipped and having insurance companies.

Daily representatives have issued the news that should be aware of the conditions which they and full of fire stations should be notified if they are a standard. The results of the fire stations have been increased because the availability and availability.