Sequence for Horn and Electronic Media (1979) Randall Faust

Thomas Hundemer, Horn

"Sequence derives its inspiration from several compositions, including In C by Terry Riley, Come Out by Steve Reich, and A MAZE (WITH GRACE) by Thomas Albert. The title has a double meaning: the performers are able to exercise choice in the sequence of events. Also, the pitch materials are derived from the Easter Sequence -- "Victimae paschali laudes" -- which is quoted at the end of the composition."

-And I bet he didn't. Cause I bet he ain't from noplac.

-You think that? That man seemed too nice for that. I mean, he said he would send money every week. And he did give me that little tape recorder machine.

-That little tape recorder machine. That's what did it, ain't it? Ain't it?

-I think it would be nice to be from noplac. Don't you think so? Don't you.

"This commission tried 425 Indians and half-breeds on the charge of murderous participation in the massacre, and of these 321 were convicted, 303 being sentenced to death, while the remainder were sentenced to pay lighter penalties. The East set up the cry that these people were prisoners of war and it would be a crime against the nation to permit of this wholesale execution. As a result an investigation was made by the general government out of which grew an order from President Lincoln... After 39 of the most guilty had been selected, one was pardoned by President Lincoln, and the 38 were executed as ordered, one large scaffold sufficing for the entire number."

-A souvenir program dedicating a public school in Hutchinson, Minn. to the white victims of the Sioux uprising.

"This is a parable for each one of us: he must organize the chaos in himself by 'thinking himself back' to his true needs."
